FOREWORD

The collection of data for this book has been a formidable task and would have been quite impossible without the cooperation of the Interdenominational Foreign Mission Association, the Committee on Cooperation in Latin America, the Evangelical Alliance (England), and many independent agencies.

Special thanks go to the Rev. J. O. Percy, general secretary of the IFMA; Dr. Howard W. Yoder, executive secretary of the CCLA; and the Rev. Gilbert W. Kirby, general secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, who were responsible for obtaining information from mission boards associated with their respective organizations.

While most boards cooperated wonderfully in gathering data from their Latin American fields, a few were rather indifferent and did not secure full reports from all the fields.

Some reports were very incomplete or did not follow the questionnaire, making it most difficult to analyze the material and develop it into a coherent report. The material which was received in usable form has been correlated, and a few gaps which remained have been filled by using figures from the World Christian Handbook, 1957 Edition (London: World Dominion Press).

Most of the statistics included in this survey date from about one year prior to the publication date.

Once the reports had been collected, the task of tabulation got under way, with Mr. David Constance, a graduate student at Columbia Bible College, donating an entire summer's work.

Mrs. Lorene Ericson of Windfall, Indiana, contributed hundreds of hours in the production of the maps which form a part of this survey. Without the splendid work of Mrs. Ericson it would not have been possible to provide the maps which add so greatly to the usefulness of this material.

It would be impossible to name all the others who have contributed time and effort toward the successful completion of this work.

Some towns which appear on the statistical charts are missing on the maps because it was impossible to find them on any map.

In some cases missions reported having work in a town, but did not designate what type it was. In such cases the town is listed just with the mission code.

INTRODUCTION

A new interest in Latin America has been awakened by the Cuban crisis, and other developments to the south of us. Suddenly people want to know about our neighbors.

The material in this publication comes at an appropriate time for certainly Christians should be interested in the spiritual activities in Latin America.

The purpose of this publication is to present the basic statistics about Protestant work in Latin America. The data has been assembled in the hope of determining the unreached areas, as well as seeing what has already been accomplished.

To aid the reader in making some comparison we here provide totals by republics taken from the Evangelical Handbook of Latin America, 1937 Edition, published by the Committee on Co-operation in Latin America (see tables on following pages). Some categories of data are lacking in the 1937 figures, so comparisons are not always possible, but a study of the data will prove rewarding.

When compared with figures from 1937, the Protestant church of today in Latin America shows tremendous growth. The extensive efforts which have been poured into the evangelization of that great area have been fruitful even in the face of serious opposition; but much remains to be done.

For the Republic of Colombia, for instance, the 1937 listing shows 1,996 church members, while this publication shows 25,976. In 1937 there were 87 Colombian pastors and evangelists, but now there are 673. This remarkable growth has taken place under circumstances of severe restraint, and violent opposition.

NOTES ON THE USE OF THE STATISTICAL SECTION

A code system using a letter-digit combination has been used to identify the mission boards, in the hope that the letter (using the initial of the mission) will serve as a memory aid, while the number gives ample coverage for the large number of missions involved.

The first name on the master-list of missionary agencies is Air Mail From God Mission, Inc., therefore it takes the code A1. The first name beginning with B is the Baptist General Conference, so it gets B1.

A number of missions had to be added after the master-list had been completed. These additions were coded under X plus a numeral, e.g., X1 is the Church of England. The missions and churches under X will be found only on the totals pages. Details of their work were not reported.

The names of the missions, with their codes, have been repeated at the beginning of each country's analysis, in order to facilitate the identification of agencies in a given country.

Throughout the work a small "o" represents an organized church group, and a small "u" represents an unorganized group meeting regularly. A numeral before these letters indicates the number of such groups, e.g., "4o" means four organized churches.

A numeral appearing alone takes its meaning from the column which bears the same number. (See pages which give country's totals.) The 9 stands for a primary school. More than one school in a given place is indicated by a number in parentheses, e.g., (2)9 means two primary schools.

Additional codes used for individual countries will be explained on the code page of each country.

On the totals pages for individual countries figures which appear below the broken line have been taken from the World Christian Handbook, 1957 Edition (London: World Dominion Press).

Footnote codes refer only to the page on which they are used. Estimates by the editors are designated by the symbol #.
